HW:

Durbrow: Knew him during various stints covering the State Department from mid-1943 through early 1945. He was Chip Bohlen's man Friday in the Eastern European division, had served in both Moscow and Warsaw, prewar, and had a striking contempt for both the Russians and the Poles, despite his name and obvious origin, and an absolute hatred for anything Communist. Thoroughly unpleasant character, a sort of diplomatic Rehnquist.
